

Fiesta Rally, 4/23/05

Hey there,

I took a little 3-day camping trip and thought you might like to see some pictures.

This was the annual Fiesta Rally, sponsored by the club I belong to, the South Coast BMW Riders Club.

About 200 people showed up at the rally for a weekend of camping and riding. The campsite was just above San Diego in the green mountains near the Cleveland National Forest.

Here are some pictures...

Here I am next to my tent.

These guys picked a nice spot across the creek that runs through the campsite.

No 4-wheeled vehicles allowed! Just bikes and tents.

These guys had a trailer and all the comforts of home.

The food was pretty good, catered by the local Lions Club.

Saturday we all went for a ride to Mt. Palomar and out to Borrego Springs – about a 200 mile ride that took most of the day.

That's a 2,000 foot drop down to Borrego Springs. Lots of twisties on this ride! (That's me in the middle with my bike.)

That's my buddy John.

Saturday night dinner was great – barbequed pork, turkey and roast beef!

After dinner, these guys provided the entertainment – bluegrass music.

They were pretty good!

They're the Ash Street Ramblers, if you're looking for a good bluegrass band.

The weather held up pretty good, but I had to ride home in the rain. So now I have to go dry out my tent and gear.

See you next trip!
